WANT HIGHWAY PLACED IN PASSABLE SHAPE

Business Men's Association Complains of Slow Work

TRAFFIC IS HINDERED

Farmers Unable to Get Into Town it is Claimed to do Their Trading

Complaint was made at the regular meeting of the Charleroi Business Men's Association Thursday night that the new road which Hastings and Piper, contractors for the State, are building out Lincoln avenue extension is in practically impassable shape. It was asserted that the farmers could not well come into the town and people here could not well go out by that route. The good roads committee consisting of Kerfoot W. Daly, J. J. Hott, W. R. Gaut and Hugh E. Fergus was instructed to look after the matter.

It is claimed that the contractors have been at work for some time. A part of the road has been torn up putting it in impassable condition. The good roads' committee will take up the matter at once to ascertain if the road cannot be put in shape before bad weather sets in.

There was not a very large representation of members present at the meeting, there being barely enough for a quorum. The routine of business matters was taken up and bills were ordered paid. The road matter occupied the most of the attention.

MISSIONARY EVANGELISTS HARD AT WORK

Pittsburg is the center of activity among evangelists now. Dr. R. A. Torrey, the famous world evangelist is giving noon-day addresses in the First Presbyterian church in the city. and holds services each evening in the Second Presbyterian church. "Billy" Sunday is holding a big revival in McKeesport. Churches in all of the towns near MsKeesport are co-operating. The third week of November will be notable in this gigantic campaign. That week is the one dedicated throughout the United States to Home Mission Week, and 2,500 cities in the country will observe it, all using the same subjects for discourses.

ROOSEVELT'S LEAD MAY BE OVER 50,000

Latest Returns Show Pennsylvania to be Distinctively a Progressive State---Legislative Ticket Much Mixed

From later election returns received at Philadelphia it is believed that Roosevelt's plurality in Pennsylvania will exceed 50,000. The Republicans will control both branches of the legislature. Two senatorial districts are in doubt, but this will not affect the result. The senate will be composed of 33 Republicans, 14 Democrats, one Washington, with two in doubt. The house will have 120 Republicans, 60 Democrats, and 27 Washington. There will be no Socialists in the next legislature, the one member of the previous session, James H. Maurer of Reading, having been defeated by a Repuolican.

The joint vote in senate and house at the next session will probably be as follows: Republicans, 153; Democrats, 74; Washington, 28; in doubt 2. There are a number of Republicans who were indorsed by the Washington party throughout the state, who are not included in the Washington classification as the latter were elected in opposition to Republican candidates.

At the last session of the legislature the joint standing of the members of the senate and house was as follows: Republicans, 199; Democrats, 57; Socialist, 1.

THANKSGIVING DAY ANNOUNCED

President Taft Proclaims November 28 as Day on Which to Give Thanks

BLESSINGS NUMEROUS

Following the usual custom, President William H. Taft has issued a Thanksgiving proclamation setting aside November 28 for the observance of the day. The proclamation follows:

"By the President of the United States of America:

"A proclamation:

"A God-fearing Nation like ours, owes it to its inborn and sincere sense of moral duty to testify its devout gratitude to the All-Giver for the countless benefits it has enjoyed. For many years it has been customary at the close of the year for the National Executive to call upon his fellow-countrymen to offer praise and thanks to God for the manifold blessings vouch-safed to them in the past and to unite in earnest suppliance for their continuance.

"The year now drawing to a close has been notably favorable to our fortunate land. At peace within and without, free from the perturbations and calamities that have afflicted other peoples; rich in harvests so abundant and in industries so productive that the overflow of our prosperity has advantaged the whole world, strong in the steadfast conservation of the heritage of self-government bequeathed to us by the wisdom of our fathers and firm in the resolve to transmit that heritage unimpaired but rather improved by good use, to our children and our children's children for all time to come, the people of this country have abounding cause for contented gratitude.

"Wherefore I, William Howard Taft, President of the United States of America, in pursuance of long-established usage and in response to the wish of the American people, invite my countrymen, wheresoever they may sojourn, to join, on Thursday, the 28th of this month of November, in appropriate ascription of praise and thanks to God for the good gifts that have been our portion, and in humble prayer that His great mercies toward us may endure.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the City of Washington this 7th day of November in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twelve and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and thirty-seventh.

WILLIAM H. TAFT.

"By the President:
"Alvey A. Adee, Acting Secretary of State."

Associated Board of Charities to Arrange Home Talent Show

PREPARE FOR WINTER

A home talent show is to be given this fall for the Associated Board of Charities, the same as last. A meeting of the board held Thursday night resulted in a decision to that effect being reached and C. W. Albright, Jr. will have charge of the selection of the cast and drilling of the various performers. "Human Hearts" is the name of the show that will be given. The date has not been selected. Last year approximately $225 was realized by a home talent production to carry on work among the poor of this community. It is hoped this year to realize that or more.

Arrangements will be made if possible to have the subject of the employment of a nurse for designated cases discussed at the Thanksgiving services that will be held by the churches of the town. A meeting of the Associated Board of Charities will be held on Monday night, when the matter will be discussed; also a date set for the home talent benefit show.

Good Show Tomorrow.

"Early Days in the West" is a two-reel Bison film that will be given at the Coyle Theatre tomorrow. This is the story of how two young lovers were parted in an emigrant train on the western plains by an Indian guide falling in love with the heroine and carrying her away. Her rescue by her lover furnishes some great action and thrilling situations.

Charleroi Postmaster is Desirable Plum for Democrats

PETITIONS ALREADY OUT

Dr. J. K. Smith and Dr. T. M. Faddis Among the First in the Field

With the election of a Democratic president there is already a scramble for official appointments when the administration changes. Already at least two petitions have been circulater by applicants for the appointment for the Charleroi postmastership when the term of the present incumbent, J. E. McCardle, expires. These applicants are Dr. J. K. Smith and Dr. T. M. Faddis, both prominent and active Democratic workers of Charleroi. The petitions were circulated the next day after the election and have been widely signed. It is stated that there may be other applicants in the field for the same appointment.

According to newspaper gossip George W. Guthrie of Pittsburg, who was the Democratic state chairman during the recent campaign, and Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Stroudsburg, will dispense the Federal patronage in Pennsylvania in districts where there is no Democratic congressman to handout the plums. Guthrie will dispense the plums in the western part of the state, while Palmer will hand them out in the east. A Washington correspondent of a Pittsburg newspaper vouches for the statement that a well-known Democrat says that President-elect Wilson will consult Messrs. Guthrie and Palmer about all Pennsylvania appointments.

Aside from the presidential postoffices, there are many desirable places in Pittsburg and Western Pennsylvania that come to the victors. One is United States attorney for the western district and two Westmoreland county Democrats are prominently mentioned for the place. They are Representatives Curtis H. Gregg, defeated for re-election by A. L. Keister, Republican and Capt, Jno. B. Keenan, one of the original boomers and a graduate of Princeton University. Both are members of the Westmoreland bar and reside in Greensburg.

Friends of Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, head of the Bureau of Mines, have started to boom him for secretary of the interior in the Wilson cabinet. Dr. Holmes is a Democrat and comes from North Carolina. He is well known by coal men along the Monongahela valley who would be glad to see him promoted to a cabinet position.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Comment on the result of thee lection by leading newspapers of the United States is particularly interesting just now, and it reflects public sentiment in regard to the political situation. Concerning present conditions, which made Wilson's election so unanimous, the New York World, Democratic, has this to say:

"This is the great work that confronts Woodrow Wilson and the Democratic party—to restore popular confidence in the institutions of the Republic and re-establish a government of the people, by the people and for the people. No man has ever been elevated to the Presidency who was more fully the people's President than this college professor, who scorned alike thes upport of the bosses and the support of the plutocracy. It is a tremendous compliment that the voters have paid to him but the responsibility is equally great."

In regard to Wilson's policy, the Philadelphia Ledger, which was an ardent supporter of Taft, says:

"The fear has often been expressed by Republicans during the campaign that, if Wilson should be elected, the tariff would be ruthlessly cut, that business would be disturbed and that prosperity might be checked. The fears are groundless. Undoubtedly the tariff will be revised and the revision will be 'downward' in many schedules, but there will be no rash courses, no drastic action, no hysteria, no injustice."

The Boston Herald, a Taft supporter, expresses its disapprobation of Republican campaign management in the following terse language:

"When the Republican national convention made a nomination for the Presidency at the behest of the Southern States which have no Republicanism, of the pocket boroughs east and west of the outlying possessions and of not more than one-third of the Republican voters who participated in the primaries in the States to which the party must look for its support, it amply provided for what happened yesterday."

The Chicago Tribune, which supported the Progressive cause, has this to say of the movement:

"The Progressives are triumphant in defeat. Theodore Roosevelt is not to be our next President, but considering what he had to overcome he has achieved something like a political miracle. The great vote rolled up by his party is at once a noble tribute to him and an assurance that Progressivism is in the flood and will yet carry the day."

One of the most influential independent newspapers of the country is the Indianapolis News, which gives utterance to the following:

"The Democratic party has a great chance to serve the people. Fortunately it is ably led. Of course the party will reform and reduce the tariff, for to that it is pledged both by its platform and its history. But we may be sure that whatever is done will be done with due regard for the rights of all."

Another Progresive newspaper of wide influence is the Cleveland Leader, which says:

"The future in the United States belongs to progress. This is true in politics and government as it is in commerce, industry and the arts. No man, no party, can long remain in the ascendant except by the favor of American citizens who believe in progressive principles."

From these utterances, made by shrewd and thoughtful observance of the signs of the times, it will readily be seen that the old order of politics has long been undergoing the process of change, and the result of the election Tuesday was but the deluge of the floods of public sentiments that have long been accumulating. Great political and economic changes are in store for this country and the process of bringing these about is the problem that now confronts us.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"Do you realize what this election means to the Republican party?" said an old-time Republican citizen this morning, when the result was the topic of conversation. "It is not only a defeat, but an absolute rout, practical annihilation. Not only have we been defeated, but we have also lost our standing and prestige as one of the great political parties of the country. We are no longer the dominant opposition party to the triumphant Democratic party, but are third, and must rank lower down on official ballots in the future, among the minor parties, the Prohibitionists, the Socialists and others.

"It may be that we can rehabilitate the party, but we will have to do it by slow degrees, fighting for every foothold, and giving the people all they ask, just as the Republican party had to do in the west, after the Populists wiped it out in the nineties. While the Republicans won back their party standing in the west, they never had the party power again that formerly existed, as is evidenced by the progressive legislation in those states, woman suffrage, the initiative, referendum and recall and the commisison form of municipal government, public utilities commission and blue sky laws. The party never again became solidly intrenched in the west, where party ties are now very lightly regarded by the people, as witnessed by the way thew change from one party to the other in the various campaigns.

"That I imagine will be the fate of the party in the east. The younger generation is not governed by traditions and from this time hence present economic conditions will govern largely the action of the voters at the polls. But it breaks my heart to see the Republican party switched off among the minority parties with no longer the reputation as a fighting adversary which, though temporarily defeated is still feared."

"Are you going to shut down your plant, now that the Democratic party has won at the election?" was asked of a prominent manufacturer in the valley this morning.

"Not on your life," was the reply. "We are exporters, and what we want is more reciprocity and less tariff on our products. What broke my heart was to see the Canadians knock out President Taft's reciprocity measure. That would have meant more to us than any protective tariff that could be imposed. We would like to get into the Canadian market with our product, as there are only two plants there making the same line of ware that we do, but the wily Canadians have learned the trick of the tariff from us and imposed a duty of 30 per cent on our ware that is imported into that country.

"That knocks us out and greatly restricts our market. While I am a Republican, I am really a free trader at heart. I believe the protective tariff a benefit in establishing manufacturers in this country, but after they are established I believe reciprocity treaties should be made that will admit products free of duty on both sides wherever possible. Other countries, particularly Canada and Mexico, are imposing traiffs that are keeping our products out of those countries which greatly restricts our business and trade."

THE BLACK SQUAD

Grimy Vulcans That Feed the Fires on Ocean Liners.

HEROES OF THE STOKEHOLD.

These Models of Human Grit Practically Brave Death Every Time They Face the Blistering Searing Blasts of Heat From the Glowing Furnaces.

An inferno, all smoke and heat and fire and nakedness, is the stokehold of an ocean liner. As you enter it, picking your way over the burning ashes the hot blast from the furnace mouth smites you in the face; it scorches your eyes and sears your lungs with every gasping breath you draw. Your impulse is to turn and fly. Life seems impossible in such an atmosphere.

And yet the inferno hums with life and strenuous, almost savage, industry. Opposite the huge boilers, quivering with suppressed power, like so many chained giants, are the figures of men as if carved in ebony, glistening with the sweat that streams from every pore. They are working furiously with muscles swelling and knotting as if they would burst through their sheath of skin—humans in quick succeeding poses of fierce labor which would delight the eye of the sculptor and baffle his skill.

Gathering up a shovelful of coals, each man propels them with a quick forward thrust of the body into the white hot heart of the furnace and with a dextrous turn of the wrist spreads them evenly over the fire. Then, quick as the eye can follow, another shovelful succeeds and another, as if life itself hung on the breathless swiftness of the sequence.

Such is the stokehold in which the vulcans of our mammoth liners and battleships feed the greedy furnaces, which keep the propellers revolving to the tune of twenty knots and more an hour—the men of the "black gang" who, clad in trousers almost as black as their grimy bodies, and with a filthy "sweat rag" loosely knotted round their necks, toil thus for four hours at a stretch, until the last "ounce" is taken out of them, and they crawl back to their quarters for a well earned eight hours of rest.

If a fireman faints, overcome by the heat and exhaustion, he is quickly laid aside in some corner, with a little tepid water dashed on his face, and there he is left until he "comes round," while his fellows ply shovel and "slice" (the latter to clear the fire periodically from refuse) with a fiercer energy than before, adding the fallen man's labor to their own. The moment he recovers consciousness he struggles to his feet, seizes the shovel and is at it again. "Go off watch?" Not he! He's as good a man as any, and the fireman never knows when he's beaten.

To call such men heroes is no abuse of an often misunderstood word. They are not only the last word in human grit and pluck—for your fireman will die rather than give in—they are heroes who face death every time they enter the stokehold, as lightheartedly as other men would sit down to their dinners. At any moment a fusible plug may fly, a boiler tube collapse, a gauge glass may splinter, and the captain may have occasion to "regret" that some good man or other has fallen a victim to his duty.

His ship may be sinking, the inrushing water swirling knee deep over the plates on which he is standing, but no thought of the boats and an escape to life is for him. He must stick to his post until the last fire is drawn and if he has time to race up the escape ladder to the boat deck well and good. If not—the odds are all against him—he goes down, a "mute, inglorious" hero, to his death. It is all part of the day's work for which he draws his meager pay, with a cheerful acceptance of the fact that his life will be short and certainly not merry, for you find few stokers who have passed their forty fifth birthday.

It is not only that the fireman's muscles and stamina must bear this inhuman strain. He must watch the gauge glasses with the keen eyes of a lynx to see that the line of bubbling beads never rises above or falls below the level that denotes safety. He must know his boilers as a jockey knows his mount; which of them requires coaxing and which requires forcing to stimulate its sluggishness, for boilers, it is said, have as many whims and caprices as a woman.

On the whole, the stoker is no unamiable man. He may growl at his food, though he often fares "like a fighting cock" aboard; he may have a vocabulary which would make the average bargee green with envy, but he will laugh you to scorn if you suggest that his work is too hard and that he is not "game" to the backbone.—London Answers.

A rural magistrate, listening to the testimony of the witness, interrupted him, saying:

"You said that you made a personal examination of the premises. What did you find?"

"Oh, nothing of consequence," replied the witness. "'A beggarly account of empty boxes,' as Shakespeare says."

"Never mind what Shakespeare said about it," said the magistrate. "He will be summoned to testify for himself if he knows anything about the case."—London Tit-Bits.

WHERE SUCCESS IN FARMING IS SURE

Northern California Offers Unheard of Opportunities.

Agriculture and horticulture are making greater strides today than ever in the history of the world, and in the United States this is especially noted in the far western lands. California is attracting more attention than any part of the country because the even climate affords a much longer growing season than in the eastern states.

California is distinguished in more ways than one. She is first in production of gold and also has first place in production of citrus fruits, deciduous fruits and fuel oil. It is the most wonderful mineral and agricultural state with resources almost beyond the comprehension of man. Its area is larger than New York, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Maine and Ohio combined. Its valleys are very extensive, well watered and rich in productivity, and its capacity for yielding is great enough to afford comfort and plenty to one-half the population of the United States.

Success in any enterprise is a much less difficult proposition in California than in other states where the summers are oppressive and the winters bitterly cold. Cyclones or devastating tornadoes are unknown and there are no endemic diseases to menace the health. In the Sacramento valley, which is one of the richest areas of the world, the small investor in agricultural enterprise has an easy way to success and independence.

For ambitious men or women who have the frugal habit and have some capital at their command there is grand opportunity on the soil of the Sacramento valley in California. Farming there is a pleasanter occupation than it is in any other state in the Union.

Alfalfa, poultry, cattle and hogs bring profitable returns in the shortest period and they are always in demand. Fruit farming is one of the most interesting occupations known to mortals and trees properly treated will yield their owner a harvest well worth all the mental and physical energy he has expended on them.

While it is absolutely certain that success will attend the efforts of every energetic man who comes to the Sacramento valley to farm, provided he has determination, brains and some money, he will find the game much easier if he profits by the experience of men and women who came to the Sacramento valley during the past several years and made good. You may find it to your advantage to write to the settlers on the Kuhn farms in Northern California and ask all about the system that brought success. It will not only bring interesting information but each reply will be instructive and perhaps stimulate confidence in yourself and supply the necessary courage to seek fortune on the peaceful shores of the Pacific.

Write today and ask the Kuhn Irrigated Land company, 345 Fourth Ave., Pittsburgh, Penna., to put you in touch with the settlers who soon found success and happiness on the Kuhn farms.

THE NUMBER SEVEN.

It Rarely Occurs In the Science of Weights and Measures.

How would you define "seven?" The Standard Dictionary says it is "one more than six." Webster's calls it "one less than eight or one less than eight." The Standard Webster says it is "five and two," and the Century's definition is "one more than six; the sum of four and three."

In numbering—that is, the science of weights and measures—seven is comparatively rare. The seven days of the week form a striking example of this, however.

Others have found, too, that the [illegible] contained seven hundred [illegible] "cubit" is from the Latin [illegible] the elbow, or the distance [illegible] to the end of the middle finger. The Roman cubit was one [illegible] Roman foot or 17.4 English inches. The royal Egyptian cubit, used in the building of the pyramids [illegible], perhaps 3500 B. C., has been learned from measuring sticks found in the tombs to have been 20.64 English inches. The ordinary cubit was divided into six palms or handbreaths, and the use of seven in the Egyptian cubit is ascribed by some investigators to a probable custom of placing the hand behind the elbow when measuring along walls with the forearm and leaving it on the wall until the arm was laid down again. It should be added that there are many other cubits of widely different values, both ancient and modern.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

THE GNU IS A PUZZLE.

It Seems to Be a Cross Between the Horse, Cow and Deer.

Did you ever hear of a horned horse? It is called the gnu and is a native of South Africa. The gnu is a puzzle. We have called it a horse, but it is more like a cow. It really seems to be a cross between the horse, the cow and the deer. It has the head and horns of a cow, the tail, the mane and withers of the horse and the legs of a deer. Altogether the gnu is one of the most singular creatures on earth.

The gnu inhabits the hilly districts of South Africa, roaming all over the country in vast herds. As far as travelers have yet penetrated it is found, and it is fortunate that it is so, for the flesh of the gnu forms excellent food. Gnus are, however, extremely wild and, being very quick in their movements, are difficult to shoot. Upon the first alarm the whole herd scampers away in single file, following a leader. When seen from a distance they look like a troop of horses.

Their speed is very great, and when first disturbed they do not exert it, but kick out their heels and begin butting at anything that comes in their way, exhibiting the greatest fury. Unless hard pressed they seldom show fight, but when brought to bay they will defend themselves desperately. They dart forward upon their enemy with great fury, and unless he remains cool and collected he probably will not escape.

A Man of Resources.

A young man genial of face and correct in attire arose from his seat in a well patronized cafe an evening or two ago, raised high a dollar bill and addressed those present.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I have here a dollar bill. It is a good bill, open to inspection by all. I want to raffle it off, and I will esteem it a favor if fifteen gentlemen will come in. Ten cents a chance—ten cents for a dollar bill. It's dirt cheap. Who will come in, please? I'll esteem it a favor, as I said, and there's the chance for a real bargain."

Fifteen men good naturedly chipped in 10 cents each, drew small squares of paper from a hat, and the winner pocketed the bill, with a laugh.

"Thank you, gentlemen," said the raffler, with a Chesterfieldian bow. "That dollar was of no use to me. But now that I've sold it for a dollar and a half I have my car fare home. Thank you. Good night."—New York Globe.

An Underground Canal.

Between Worsley and St. Helens, in the north of England, is the most remarkable canal in the world. It is underground, from end to end, and is sixteen miles long. In Lancashire the coal mines are very extensive, half the country being undermined, and many years ago the Duke of Bridgewater's managers thought they could save money by transporting the coal underground instead of on the surface. The canal was constructed and the mines connected and drained at the same time. Ordinary canal boats are used, but the power is furnished by men. On the roof of the tunnel arch are cross pieces, and the men do the work of propulsion by lying on their backs on the coal and pushing with their feet against the crossbars on the roof.—Argonaut.

AMONG THE THEATRES

THE ALVIN—PITTSBURG.

"The Whirl of Society," the big New York Winter Garden attraction, which will be seen at the Alvin Theatre, Pittsburg, on November 11, is one of the most elaborate entertainments ever seen in thecity. It is offered by a company of 100 people, among whom are some of the best known entertainers on the stage. In addition to the two acts of the piece, "A Night with the Piorrots," a fantastic interlude, is offered between the two acts, which makes the entertainment practically continuous.

There is a plot in the main part of the offering but it is not one that will cause any deep study on the part of the public. Mrs. L. Hemingway Deane, played by Ada Lewis, is an aspiring parvenu. She gives many functions to which many are invited and she attempts to win her way by inviting members of the British nability to her soirees. There is a negro butler in the Dean household, who is impersonated by Al Jolson. Mrs. Deane introduces numerous notable figures in an entertainment and presents Maurice, the famed cabaret dancer and his partner, Florence Walton, who performs for the guests; the Courney Sisters sing and dance, and there are many other unusual features. The runway leading from the rear of the house to the stage forms a pathway over which the figurantes march in gay array and give the audience an intimate view of the entertainers.

Al Jolson heads the cast, and some of the other prominent players are Ada Lewis, Lawrence D'Orsay and Clarence Harvey.

THE GRAND—PITTSBURG.

The fourth week of the brilliant winter season of international vaudeville in the Grand begins next Monday afternoon, November 11, with a program of all-nation acts, representing the utmost variety and expressing vaudeville's most intrinsic artistic trend. It is of special interest to Pittsburgers that Mike Donlin, the the gingery, hard-hitting and popular out-fielder of the Pirates, is to make his local debut in company with Tom Lewis, an unctous musical comedy comedian, lately of "The Yankee Prince" Company. They are to play a little skit of the national game in which Mr. Donlin is billed as the "Ball Player" and Mr. Lewis as the "Unknown." In the little skit with Mr. Lewis he is playing what is echinally known on the stage as a straight part, while the humor largely falls to the Falstaffian comedian. Robbie Gordone, an Italian girl sculptor and art model ,will appear in a superb and sumptuous production in which she poses in replica of famous classic statutes. Miss Gordone is a beautiful girl, young, lithe of figure and molded on the lines of a Greek goddess. With wonderfully effective stage lightings, settings and draperies, she poses fourteen diametrically different subjects in the space of nine minutes, making her changes with remarkable celecity.

A pair of dusky grand opera singers are Downs and Gomez, baritone and soprano, whose remarkable voices are eveywhere the subject of unstinted praise. The gentility of juggling will be expressed by the Havelocks, late of the Agoust Family who will entertain with a merry silent skit called "Fun at a Five O'Clock Tea." Billy M. Wells will create laughter with his Yiddish monologue on current topics. M. Wells is a droll comedian who makes the East Side type a reality. From the Alhambra, London come Mosher, Hays and Mosher with a cycling comedy and supplementing these gifted players, are various others of undoubted talent. Motion pictures will round out a truly extraordinary bill.

THE COYLE—CHARLEROI

Beginning with the "Life of Scout Younger," in three reels, the repertoire at the Coyle Theatre this week afforded a fine array of features in photoplays. "Scout Younger," who is a brother of the notorious outlaw, Cole Younger, the pal of Jesse James, and who served 30 years in the penitentiary for the murder of the cashier in the celebrated Northfield, Minn., bank robbery shows in motion pictures some of the episodes of his thrilling career. An outlaw himself he paid the penalty behind the bars, but reformed and passed the remainder of his life in the wild west frontier and in the show business. "Star Eyes' Strategy" was a thrilling episode of love among the Indians, two tribes at war with each other furnishing all the features of the rival houses in Shakespeare's great tragedy, "Romeo and Juliet." An Eclaire film in two reels, "Caprices of Fortune," in which love and adventure are thrillingly intermingled, was a most charming feature. "The Hoodoo Letter'" was another Eclaire film with a humorous interpretation, where an absent minded health officer writes a letter for a beggar giving him a permit to the pest house as a small-pox patient instead of a hard luck note. The bill for the week closes Saturday with "Early Days in the West," a two reel film of love and adventure.

THE PALACE—CHARLEROI.

With the big four-reel feature "Madeline," a graphic French story of love and intrigue in which the stirring scenes of the siege of Paris during the Franco-Prussian war form a background for the plot, the Palace Theatre had a most excellent repertoire. It was a great drawing card. Another film of unusual power and dramatic action was "The Painted Lady," a story of an elder sister who surprises a younger sister painting and powdering her face. Reproved the younger girl retorts that one has to paint if she gets any attention. The elder sister abstains from the practice, but receives no attention from the young men. A stranger appears and pays attention to the elder sister only to gain her affections in order to rob her father. The girl surprises her lover in the act, but the shock is so great that she goes insane, and just before she dies paints and powders her face in order to attract her absent lover whom she believed will return. "Little Raven's Sweetheart," was another pretty picture of a childish love between an Indian boy at a frontier fort and the little daughter of an officer of the garrison. The girl is captured by the Indians of the lad's family who rescues her under exciting conditions. The Pathe Weekly Bulletin showed some gasoline explosions in a fire on a steamship at Bayonne which were most startling.

THE STAR—CHARLEROI.

With no distinguishing feature during the week ,but a succession of strong individual films, the Star Theatre this week had a remarkably good bill. "Bad Pete's Gratitude," "Love of the Flag," "Their Hero Son," were photoplays which, as their names suggest, were strong in human interest and gripping sensations. "On the Firing Line," was a Bison film which showed a civil war episode, where a small girl, in the role of an eavesdropper learned some valuable information from some officers who used the manor as headquarters, and in the night time the girl secures the papers from a sleeping officer and gives them to a Confederate soldier who takes the information to headquarters. It was just in time to prevent the capture of a wagon train, and an ambush and spirited cavalry fight follows. Among others of equal merit were "The Fugitive," "The Butterfly," "And the Greatest of These is Charity." Gaumont's Weekly, gave an animated view of world-wide events, and the bill closes with some excellent photoplays for Saturday, among which are "Letters of Lifetime," and "His Better Self."

Granted Insurance After Consumption

There are so many cases of Consumption reported where the details show the disease started with a cold or a cough, that it is really surprising that people are not more anxious to immediately stop these apparently minor troubles. Our advice is "stop the cough or cold, if possible, without delay." Otherwise more serious troubles are likely to follow. If the medicines you are now taking do not bring relief, try Eckman's Alterative, as this man did:—

275 Dean St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Gentlemen: I am giving you below a brief history of my case, which I trust you will use for the benefit of those suffering from any similar troubles.

"About a year and a half ago I noticed that my health was rapidly failing, until at the end of six months my weight had fallen to 129 pounds. I was troubled with night sweats, a severe cough and was very weak, having in fact absolutely no ambition whatever. About this time I consulted a physician, who told me my lungs were affected. Not satisfied I went to another doctor, who after examining me said that I was in the first stages of consumption. At this point I started to take Eckman's Alterative. The night sweats stopped almost immediately, my cough [illegible] disappeared. My weight is now 142 pounds and my physician has pronounced me perfectly sound—which, together with the fact that I have been accepted by two different insurance companies for insurance, makes me sure of my entire recovery by Eckman's Alterative. I should be very glad to communicate with any one who would be interested in my case.

(Sworn Affidavit) W. E. GEE.

Eckman's Alterative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries, and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for more evidence. For sale by all leading druggists

OUTWITTED A LION.

Clever Tactics of a Plucky and Ingenious African.

The little bushman of South Africa is not only small in size, but feeble in mind. Yet there is on record an encounter between a bushman and a lion which shows the man as cool in danger and fertile in resource.

This bushman, while a long way from his home, was met by a lion. The animal, assured that he had his victim completely in his power, began to sport and dally with him with a feline jocosity which the poor little bushman failed to appreciate. The lion would appear at a point in the road and leap back again into the jungle, to reappear a little farther on.

The bushman, however, did not lose his presence of mind and presently hit upon a device whereby he might outwit his foe. This plan was suggested by the lion's own conduct.

Aware that the beast was ahead of him, the bushman dodged to the right, and, feeling pretty sure of the lion's whereabouts, resorted to the course of quietly watching his movements.

When the lion discovered that the man had suddenly disappeared from the path he was a good deal perplexed. He roared with mortification. Then he espied the bushman peeping at him over the grass.

The bushman at once changed his position, while the lion stood irresolute in the path, following with his eye the shifting black man. In another moment the little man rustled the reeds, vanished and showed himself at another point.

The great brute was first confused and then alarmed. It evidently began to dawn upon him that he had mistaken the position of matters and that he was the hunted party.

The bushman, who clearly recognized the situation, did not pause to permit the lion to recover his startled wits. He began to steal gradually toward the foe, who now, in a complete state of doubt and fear, turned tail and decamped, leaving the plucky and ingenious little bushman master of the situation.—Harper's.

QUEENSBORO BRIDGE.

The Greatest Structure of Its Kind in the World.

Measured by the combined length and capacity of its five main spans, the Queensboro bridge, across the East river from Fifty-ninth street, New York, to Ravenswood, Queens, is the greatest bridge in the world. Including approaches its total length is 8,600 feet, width 86 feet and greatest height over 300 feet above the water. It crosses from shore to shore, 135 feet above the river, with three enormous spans of 1,182 feet, 630 feet and 984 feet, the middle one reaching across the full width of Blackwell's island. Besides these there are two more great "anchor" spans, one at each end, wholly over dry land, with a length of 3,724 feet for the five, which together contain over 105,000,000 pounds of steel. No other spans in this country, except suspension bridges, approach the longest of these, and the only trussed span in the world which exceeds it is the Forth bridge, which, although 1,710 feet long, has a capacity for only two railroad tracks, less than one-third of this. There are two decks, the lower carrying a wide driveway and four electric car tracks and the upper one two sidewalks and two elevated railroad tracks and having in all an estimated capacity of 200,000,000 car passengers and millions of vehicles and pedestrians annually. It cost over $20,000,000.—Exchange.

PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH.

Descendants of the Germans Who Came to This Country in 1682.

To most Americans the word "Dutch" means German. The Dutch are Hollanders from the Netherlands. New York was first settled by the Dutch from Holland.

The first Germans came to this country in 1682 and settled at Germantown. It is estimated that the Germans and their descendants in Pennsylvania numbered 100,000 at the time of our revolution. The descendants of these are called the Pennsylvania Germans or Dutch. The word Dutch is a corruption of Deutsch, meaning German.

The early Germans were followers of Menno Simons, known as Mennonites. They were persecuted in their own country on account of their religious belief and when Penn offered religious liberty it was gladly accepted by them. The persecuted Germans came largely from the Rhenish palatinate, Wurtemberg, from the lower Rhine, Alsace, Saxony and Switzerland.

The southeastern counties of Pennsylvania, such as Lancaster, York, Berks and Lebanon, were chosen for settlement. These settlers spoke a variety of dialects, and, owing to segregation in religious communities, they clung to their mother tongue. English words have since crept in and as a result we have the somewhat picturesque language known as the "Pennsylvania Dutch." Their religious belief and their common interest have preserved this class with singular purity.—Philadelphia Ledger.

TAKING A CAMERA ABROAD.

A Source of Pleasure That May Win Fine and Imprisonment.

If the American tourist carries his camera to Europe with him he must be careful to avoid photographing persons, private property and particularly government buildings, forts, docks and ships without permission. Many tourists have got themselves into much trouble in this way, especially in Russia, where the restrictions are unusually rigid, and in Germany also.

A few years ago Germany passed a special bill through the reichstag dealing with this matter and imposing heavy penalties upon those who infringe the regulations. Damages to the amount of $1,500, with a fine of $250 or two months' imprisonment, will be the fate of any one who snapshots a private person, a work of art or the interior of a private building and circulates or publishes the picture without permission.

Persons in the public eye, such as members of the royal family, statesmen, actors and well known divines are excepted, says a writer in Country Life in America. So, too, are public buildings and works of art in public galleries.

In Italy the camera of the tourist is made a means of providing revenue for that somewhat impoverished country. If you carry your camera when on a visit to Pompeii or others of the recently excavated ruins you may take as many photographs as you please, but you are forced to pay a small fee for each plate exposed.

G. A. Sala and His Epitaph.

Among some autograph letters and historical documents sold recently were a series of eight letters by George Augustus Sala addressed to W. P. Frith, including an amusing forecast of his own epitaph:

When I die it may be written on my tomb,
He wrote the worst burlesque ever acted;
He abused the constituted authorities
and with malice prepense
maligned
The Royal Academy of Arts.
He did the things he ought not to have done and never did
Those he should have done.
He was stout in person and bloated in countenance, and
He never came to dinner when he was asked.
But when he "dropped in" unasked was no doubt better company than many invited guests are!

Passport to the North Pole.

A passport to the north pole was issued some years ago by the governor of the province of Tobolsk, which stretches along the Russian shores of the Arctic ocean. The official was approached by two men who had been engaged to proceed to the north with an English expedition then fitting out. Their petition was for a passport to the pole itself, but the governor pointed out that the pole was as likely to be in their home province as in any other, that it was extremely unlikely they would reach it and that if they did there were no police there to examine their credentials. At last, however, to satisfy them he ordered the issue of a document allowing them to pass without let or hindrance to the north pole.

Dickens' Den.

Dickens' care for his material surroundings did not end with his bedroom. His favorite writing place at Gadshill was a Swiss chalet in the shrubbery, and this he fitted up in a most ingenious fashion. "I have put mirrors in the chalet where I write," he says in one of his letters, "and they reflect and refract in all kinds of ways the leaves that are quivering at the windows and the great fields of waving corn and the sail dotted river. My room is up among the branches of the trees, and the birds and the butterflies fly in and out, and the green branches shoot in at the open windows, and the lights and the shadows of the clouds come and go with the rest of the company. The scent of the flowers and indeed of everything that is growing for miles and miles is most delicious."—London Chronicle.

"FAGGED-OUT" WOMEN

Will Find a Helpful Suggestion in This Letter.

Overworked, run down "fagged out" women who feel as though they could hardly drag about, should profit by Miss Richter's experience. She says: "Last winter I was completely down and felt fagged out all the time was nervous and had indigestion.

"One of my friends advised me to take Vinol and it has done me great good. The tired worn-out feeling is all gone and I am strong, vigorous and well. The stomach trouble soon disappeared and now I eat heartily and have perfect digestion. I wish every tired, weak, nervous woman could have Vinol, for I never spent any money in my life that did me so much good as that I spent for Vinol." Marie Richter, Detroit, Mich.

Thousands of women and men who were formerly weak and sickly owe their present rugged health to the wonderful strength-creating effects of Vinol. We guarantee Vinol to build does up and make you strong. If it does not we give back your money. Piper Brothers, Druggist.

Willing to Trade.

Uncle Mose was a chronic thief, who usually managed to keep within the petty larceny limit. One time he miscalculated, however, and was sent to trial on a charge of grand larceny.

"Have you a lawyer, Mose?" asked the court.

"No, sah."

"Well, to be perfectly fair I'll appoint a couple. Mr. Jones and Mr. Brown will act as counsel."

"What's dat?"

"Act as your lawyers. Consult with them and prepare to tell me whether you are guilty or not guilty."

"Yes, sah."

Mose talked to his attorneys for a few moments in husky whispers. The judge caught only the several times repeated word alibi. Then Mose arose, scratched his head and addressed the court.

"Jedge, yoh honah," he said, "cou'se I's only an ign'ant niggah an' Ah don' want toh boshah yoh honah, but Ah would suttinly like toh trade. yoh honah, one oh dese yeah lawyahs foh a witness."—Kansas City Journal

The Church of Gold.

There is no structure just like St Mark's in Venice in the world. Its bulb shaped domes and minaret like belfries remind the visitor of the orient. It seems more like a Mohammedan than a Christian temple. In the facade are scores of variously colored marble columns, each one a monolite and all possessing an eventful history. Some are from Ephesus, others from Smyrna, others from Constantinople and more than one even from Jerusalem. St. Mark's is the treasure house of Venice, a place of pride as well as prayer. The work of beautifying this old church was carried on for five centuries, and each generation tried to outdo all that had preceded it. The walls and roof are so profusely covered with mosaics and precious marbles that it is easy to understand why St Mark's has been called the "Church of Gold."

WANT HIGHWAY PLACED IN PASSABLE SHAPE

Business Men's Association Complains of Slow Work

TRAFFIC IS HINDERED

Farmers Unable to Get Into Town it is Claimed to do Their Trading

Complaint was made at the regular meeting of the Charleroi Business Men's Association Thursday night that the new road which Hastings and Piper, contractors for the State, are building out Lincoln avenue extension is in practically impassable shape. It was asserted that the farmers could not well come into the town and people here could not well go out by that route. The good roads committee consisting of Kerfoot W. Daly, J. J. Hott, W. R. Gaut and Hugh E. Fergus was instructed to look after the matter.

It is claimed that the contractors have been at work for some time. A part of the road has been torn up putting it in impassable condition. The good roads' committee will take up the matter at once to ascertain if the road cannot be put in shape before bad weather sets in.

There was not a very large representation of members present at the meeting, there being barely enough for a quorum. The routine of business matters was taken up and bills were ordered paid. The road matter occupied the most of the attention.

ROOSEVELT'S LEAD MAY BE OVER 50,000

Latest Returns Show Pennsylvania to be Distinctively a Progressive State--Legislative Ticket Much Mixed

From later election returns received at Philadelphia it is believed that Roosevelt's plurality in Pennsylvania will exceed 50,000. The Republicans will control both branches of the legislature. Two senatorial districts are in doubt, but this will not affect the result. The senate will be composed of 33 Republicans, 14 Democrats, one Washington, with two in doubt. The house will have 120 Republicans, 60 Democrats, and 27 Washington. There will be no Socialists in the next legislature, the one member of the previous session, James H. Maurer of Reading, having been defeated by a Republican.

The joint vote in senate and house at the next session will probably be as follows: Republicans, 153; Democrats, 74; Washington. 28: in doubt 2. There are a number of Republicans who were indorsed by the Washington party throughout the state, who are not included in the Washington classification as the latter were elected in opposition to Republican candidates.

At the last session of the legislature the joint standing of the members of the senate and house was as follows: Republicans, 199; Democrats, 57; Socialist, 1.

THANKSGIVING DAY ANNOUNCED

President Taft Proclaims November 28 as Day on Which to Give Thanks

BLESSINGS NUMEROUS

Following the usual custom, President William H. Taft has issued a Thanksgiving proclamation setting aside November 28 for the observance of the day. The proclamation follows:

"By the President of the United States of America:

"A proclamation:

"A God-fearing Nation like ours, owes it to its inborn and sincere sense of moral duty to testify its devout gratitude to the All-Giver for the countless benefits it has enjoyed. For many years it has been customary at the close of the year for the National Executive to call upon his fellow-countrymen to offer praise and thanks to God for the manifold blessings vouch-safed to them in the past and to unite in earnest suppliance for their continuance.

"The year now drawing to a close has been notably favorable to our fortunate land. At peace within and without, free from the perturbations and calamities that have afflicted other peoples; rich in harvests so abundant and in industries so productive that the overflow of our prosperity has advantaged the whole world, strong in the steadfast conservation of the heritage of self-government bequeathed to us by the wisdom of our fathers and firm in the resolve to transmit that heritage unimpaired but rather improved by good use, to our children and our children's children for all time to come, the people of this country have abounding cause for contented gratitude.

"Wherefore I, William Howard Taft, President of the United States of America, in pursuance of long-established usage and in response to the wish of the American people, invite my countrymen, wheresoever they may sojourn, to join, on Thursday, the 28th of this month of November, in appropriate ascription of praise and thanks to God for the good gifts that have been our portion, and in humble prayer that His great mercies toward us may endure.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the City of Washington this 7th day of November in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twelve and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and thirty-seventh.

WILLIAM H. TAFT.

"By the President:
"Alvey A. Adee, Acting Secretary of State."

Associated Board of Charities to Arrange Home Talent Show

PREPARE FOR WINTER

A home talent show is to be given this fall for the Associated Board of Charities, the same as last. A meeting of the board held Thursday night resulted in a decision to that effect being reached and C. W. Albright, Jr. will have charge of the selection of the cast and drilling of the various performers. "Human Hearts" is the name of the show that will be given. The date has not been selected. Last year approximately $225 was realized by a home talent production to carry on work among the poor of this community. It is hoped this year to realize that or more.

Arrangements will be made if possible to have the subject of the employment of a nurse for designated cases discussed at the Thanksgiving services that will be held by the churches of the town. A meeting of the Associated Board of Charities will be held on Monday night, when the matter will be discussed; also a date set for the home talent benefit show.

Good Show Tomorrow.

"Early Days in the West" is a two-reel Bison film that will be given at the Coyle Theatre tomorrow. This is the story of how two young lovers were parted in an emigrant train on the western plains by an Indian guide falling in love with the heroine and carrying her away. Her rescue by her lover furnishes some great action and thrilling situations.

Charleroi Postmaster is Desirable Plum for Democrats

PETITIONS ALREADY OUT

Dr. J. K. Smith and Dr. T. M. Faddis Among the First in the Field

With the election of a Democratic president there is already a scramble for official appointments when the administration changes. Already at least two petitions have been circulated by applicants for the appointment for the Charleroi postmastership when the term of the present incumbent, J. E. McCardle, expires. These applicants are Dr. J. K. Smith and Dr. T. M. Faddis, both prominent and active Democratic workers of Charleroi. The petitions were circulated the next day after the election and have been widely signed. It is stated that there may be other applicants in the field for the same appointment.

According to newspaper gossip George W. Guthrie of Pittsburg, who was the Democratic state chairman during the recent campaign, and Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Stroudsburg, will dispense the Federal patronage in Pennsylvania in districts where there is no Democratic congressman to hand out the plums. Guthrie will dispense the plums in the western part of the state, while Palmer will hand them out in the east. A Washington correspondent of a Pittsburg newspaper vouches for the statement that a well-known Democrat says that President-elect Wilson will consult Messrs. Guthrie and Palmer about all Pennsylvania appointments.

Aside from the presidential postoffices, there are many desirable places in Pittsburg and Western Pennsylvania that come to the victors. One is United States attorney for the western district and two Westmoreland county Democrats are prominently mentioned for the place. They are Representatives Curtis H. Gregg, defeated for re-election by A. L. Keister. Republican and Capt. Jno. B. Keenan, one of the original boomers and a graduate of Princeton University. Both are members of the Westmoreland bar and reside in Greensburg.

Friends of Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, head of the Bureau of Mines, have started to boom him for secretary of the interior in the Wilson cabinet. Dr. Holmes is a Democrat and comes from North Carolina. He is well known by coal men along the Monongahela valley who would be glad to see him promoted to a cabinet position.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Comment on the result of thee lection by leading newspapers of the United States is particularly interesting just now, and it reflects public sentiment in regard to the political situation. Concerning present conditions, which made Wilson's election so unanimous, the New York World, Democratic, has this to say:

"This is the great work that confronts Woodrow Wilson and the Democratic party—to restore popular confidence in the institutions of the Republic and re-establish a government of the people, by the people and for the people. No man has ever been elevated to the Presidency who was more fully the people's President than this college professor, who scorned alike thes upport of the bosses and the support of the plutocracy. It is a tremendous compliment that the voters have paid to him but the responsibility is equally great."

In regard to Wilson's policy, the Philadelphia Ledger, which was an ardent supporter of Taft, says:

"The fear has often been expressed by Republicans during the campaign that, if Wilson should be elected, the tariff would be ruthlessly cut, that business would be disturbed and that prosperity might be checked. The fears are groundless. Undoubtedly the tariff will be revised and the revision will be 'downward' in many schedules, but there will be no rash courses, no drastic action, no hysteria, no injustice."

The Boston Herald, a Taft supporter, expresses its disapprobation of Republican campaign management in the following terse language:

"When the Republican national convention made a nomination for the Presidency at the behest of the Southern States which have no Republicanism, of the pocket boroughs east and west of the outlying possessions and of not more than one-third of the Republican voters who participated in the primaries in the States to which the party must look for its support, it amply provided for what happened yesterday."

The Chicago Tribune, which supported the Progressive cause, has this to say of the movement:

"The Progressives are triumphant in defeat. Theodore Roosevelt is not to be our next President, but considering what he had to overcome he has achieved something like a political miracle. The great vote rolled up by his party is at once a noble tribute to him and an assurance that Progressivism is in the flood and will yet carry the day."

One of the most influential independent newspapers of the country is the Indianapolis News, which gives utterance to the following:

"The Democratic party has a great chance to serve the people. Fortunately it is ably led. Of course the party will reform and reduce the tariff, for to that it is pledged both by its platform and its history. But we may be sure that whatever is done will be done with due regard for the rights of all."

Another Progresive newspaper of wide influence is the Cleveland Leader, which says:

"The future in the United States belongs to progress. This is true in politics and government as it is in commerce, industry and the arts. No man, no party, can long remain in the ascendant except by the favor of American citizens who believe in progressive principles."

From these utterances, made by shrewd and thoughtful observance of the signs of the times, it will readily be seen that the old order of politics has long been undergoing the process of change, and the result of the election Tuesday was but the deluge of the floods of public sentiments that have long been accumulating. Great political and economic changes are in store for this country and the process of bringing these about is the problem that now confronts us.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"Do you realize what this election means to the Republican party?" said an old-time Republican citizen this morning, when the result was the topic of conversation. "It is not only a defeat, but an absolute rout, practical annihilation. Not only have we been defeated, but we have also lost our standing and prestige as one of the great political parties of the country. We are no longer the dominant opposition party to the triumphant Democratic party, but are third, and must rank lower down on official ballots in the future, among the minor parties, the Prohibitionists, the Socialists and others.

"It may be that we can rehabilitate the party, but we will have to do it by slow degrees, fighting for every foothold, and giving the people all they ask, just as the Republican party had to do in the west, after the Populists wiped it out in the nineties. While the Republicans won back their party standing in the west, they never had the party power again that formerly existed, as is evidenced by the progressive legislation in those states, woman suffrage, the initiative, referendum and recall and the commisison form of municipal government, public utilities commission and blue sky laws. The party never again became solidly intrenched in the west, where party ties are now very lightly regarded by the people, as witnessed by the way thew change from one party to the other in the various campaigns.

"That I imagine will be the fate of the party in the east. The younger generation is not governed by traditions and from this time hence present economic conditions will govern largely the action of the voters at the polls. But it breaks my heart to see the Republican party switched off among the minority parties with no longer the reputation as a fighting adversary which ,though temporarily defeated is still feared."

"Are you going to shut down your plant, now that the Democratic party has won at the election?" was asked of a prominent manufacturer in the valley this morning.

"Not on your life," was the reply. "We are exporters, and what we want is more reciprocity and less tariff on our products. What broke my heart was to see the Canadians knock out President Taft's reciprocity measure. That would have meant more to us than any protective tariff that could be imposed. We would like to get into the Canadian market with our product, as there are only two plants there making the same line of ware that we do, but the wily Canadians have learned the trick of the tariff from us and imposed a duty of 30 per cent on our ware that is imported into that country.

"That knocks us out and greatly restricts our market. While I am a Republican, I am really a free trader at heart. I believe the protective tariff a benefit in establishing manufacturers in this country, but after they are established I believe reciprocity treaties should be made that will admit products free of duty on both sides wherever possible. Other countries, particularly Canada and Mexico, are imposing traiffs that are keeping our products out of those countries which greatly restricts our business and trade."

THE BLACK SQUAD

Grimy Vulcans That Feed the Fires on Ocean Liners.

HEROES OF THE STOKEHOLD.

These Models of Human Grit Practically Brave Death Every Time They Face the Blistering Searing Blasts of Heat From the Glowing Furnaces.

An inferno, all smoke and heat and fire and nakedness, is the stokehold of an ocean liner. As you enter it, picking your way over the burning ashes the hot blast from the furnace mouths smites you in the face; it scorches your eyes and sears your lungs with every gasping breath you draw. Your impulse is to turn and fly. Life seems impossible in such an atmosphere.

And yet the inferno hums with life and strenuous, almost savage, industry. Opposite the huge boilers, quivering with suppressed power, like so many chained giants, are the figures of men as if carved in ebony, glistening with the sweat that streams from every pore. They are working furiously, with muscles swelling and knotting as if they would burst through their sheath of skin. Animals in quick succeeding poses of fierce labor which would delight the eye of the sculptor and baffle his skill.

Gathering up a shovelful of coals, each man propels them with a quick forward thrust of the body into the white hot heart of the furnace and with a dextrous turn of the wrist spreads them evenly over the fire. Then, quick as the eye can follow, another shovelful succeeds and another, as if life itself hung on the breathless swiftness of the sequence.

Such is the stokehold in which the vulcans of our mammoth liners and battleships feed the greedy furnaces, which keep the propellers revolving to the tune of twenty knots and more an hour—the men of the "black gang" who, clad in trousers almost as black as their grimy bodies, and with a filthy "sweat rag" loosely knotted round their necks, toil thus for four hours at a stretch, until the last "ounce" is taken out of them, and they crawl back to their quarters for a well earned eight hours of rest.

If a fireman faints, overcome by the heat and exhaustion, he is quickly laid aside in some corner, with a little tepid water dashed on his face, and there he is left until he "comes round," while his fellows ply shovel and "slice" (the latter to clear the fire periodically from refuse) with a fiercer energy than before, adding the fallen man's labor to their own. The moment he recovers consciousness he struggles to his feet, seizes the shovel and is at it again. "Go off watch?" Not he! He's as good a man as any, and the fireman never knows when he's beaten.

To call such men heroes is no abuse of an often misunderstood word. They are not only the last word in human grit and pluck—for your fireman will die rather than give in—they are heroes who face death every time they enter the stokehold, as lightheartedly as other men would sit down to their dinners. At any moment a fusible plug may fly, a boiler tube collapse, a gauge glass may splinter, and the captain may have occasion to "regret" that some good man or other has fallen a victim to his duty.

His ship may be sinking, the inrushing water swirling knee deep over the plates on which he is standing, but no thought of the boats and an escape to life is for him. He must stick to his post until the last fire is drawn and if he has time to race up the escape ladder to the boat deck well and good. If not—the odds are all against him—he goes down, a "mute, inglorious" hero, to his death. It is all part of the day's work for which he draws his meager pay, with a cheerful acceptance of the fact that his life will be short and certainly not merry, for you find few stokers who have passed their forty-fifth birthday.

It is not only that the fireman's muscles and stamina must bear this inhuman strain. He must watch the gauge glasses with the keen eyes of a lynx to see that the line of bubbling beads never rises above or falls below the level that denotes safety. He must know his boilers as a jockey knows his mount; which of them requires coaxing and which requires forcing to stimulate its sluggishness, for boilers, it is said, have as many whims and caprices as a woman.

On the whole, the stoker is no unamiable man. He may growl at his food, though he often fares "like a fighting cock" aboard; he may have a vocabulary which would make the average bargee green with envy, but he will laugh you to scorn if you suggest that his work is too hard and that he is not "game" to the backbone.—London Answers.

No Hearsay Evidence.

A rural magistrate, listening to the testimony of the witness, interrupted him, saying:

"You said that you made a personal examination of the premises. What did you find?"

"Oh, nothing of consequence," replied the witness. "'A beggarly account of empty boxes,' as Shakespeare says."

"Never mind what Shakespeare said about it," said the magistrate. "He will be summoned to testify for himself if he knows anything about the case."—London Tit-Bits.

WHERE SUCCESS IS FARMING IS SURE

Northern California Offers Unheard of Opportunities.

Agriculture and horticulture are making greater strides today than ever in the history of the world, and in the United States this is especially noted in the far western lands. California is attracting more attention than any part of the country because the even climate affords a much longer growing season than in the eastern states.

California is distinguished in more ways than one. She is first in production of gold and also has first place in production of citrus fruits, deciduous fruits and fuel oil. It is the most wonderful mineral and agricultural state with resources almost beyond the comprehension of man. Its area is larger than New York, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Maine and Ohio combined. Its valleys are very extensive, well watered and rich in productivity, and its capacity for yielding is great enough to afford comfort and plenty to one-half the population of the United States.

Success in any enterprise is a much less difficult proposition in California than in other states where the summers are oppressive and the winters bitterly cold. Cyclones or devastating tornadoes are unknown and there are no endemic diseases to menace the health. In the Sacramento valley, which is one of the richest areas of the world, the small investor in agricultural enterprise has an easy way to success and independence.

For ambitious men or women who have the frugal habit and have some capital at their command there is grand opportunity on the soil of the Sacramento valley in California. Farming there is a pleasanter occupation than it is in any other state in the Union.

Alfalfa, poultry, cattle and hogs bring profitable returns in the shortest period and they are always in demand. Fruit farming is one of the most interesting occupations known to mortals and trees properly treated will yield their owner a harvest well worth all the mental and physical energy he has expended on them.

While it is absolutely certain that success will attend the efforts of every energetic man who comes to the Sacramento valley to farm, provided he has determination, brains and some money, he will find the game much easier if he profits by the experience of men and women who came to the Sacramento valley during the past several years and made good. You may find it to your advantage to write to the settlers on the Kuhn farms in Northern California and ask all about the system that brought success. It will not only bring interesting information but each reply will be instructive and perhaps stimulate confidence in yourself and supply the necessary courage to seek fortune on the peaceful shores of the Pacific.

Write today and ask the Kuhn Irrigated Land company, 345 Fourth Ave., Pittsburgh, Penna., to put you in touch with the settlers who soon found success and happiness on the Kuhn farms.

THE NUMBER SEVEN.

It Rarely Occurs In the Science of Weights and Measures.

How would you define "seven?" The Standard Dictionary says it is "one more than six." Webster's calls it "one more than six or one less than eight." The abridged Webster says it is "five and two," and the Century's definition runs "one more than six; the sum of three and four."

In metrology—that is, the science of weights and measures—seven is comparatively rare. The seven days of the week, form a striking example of its use, however.

Tests have found, too, that the Egyptian cubit contained seven hand[illegible]. "Cubit" is from the Latin "cubitum," the elbow, or the distance from the elbow to the end of the middle finger. The Roman cubit was one foot, or Roman feet or 17.4 English. [illegible] the royal Egyptian cubit, used in the building of the pyramids of Gizeh, perhaps that B. C. has been learned from measuring sticks found in the tombs to have been 20.64 English inches. The ordinary cubit was divided into six palms or handbreaths, and the use of seven in the Egyptian cubit is ascribed by some investigators to a probable custom of placing the hand behind the elbow when measuring along walls with the forearm and leaving it on the wall until the arm was laid down again. It should be added that there are many other cubits of widely different values, both ancient and modern.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

THE GNU IS A PUZZLE.

It Seems to Be a Cross Between the Horse, Cow and Deer.

Did you ever hear of a horned horse? It is called the gnu and is a native of South Africa. The gnu is a puzzle. We have called it a horse, but it is more like a cow. It really seems to be a cross between the horse, the cow and the deer. It has the head and horns of a cow, the tail, the mane and withers of the horse and the legs of a deer. Altogether the gnu is one of the most singular creatures on earth.

The gnu inhabits the hilly districts of South Africa, roaming all over the country in vast herds. As far as travelers have yet penetrated it is found, and it is fortunate that it is so, for the flesh of the gnu forms excellent food. Gnus are, however, extremely wild and, being very quick in their movements, are difficult to shoot. Upon the first alarm the whole herd scampers away in single file, following a leader. When seen from a distance they look like a troop of horses.

Their speed is very great, and when first disturbed they do not exert it, but kick out their heels and begin butting at anything that comes in their way, exhibiting the greatest fury. Unless hard pressed they seldom show fight, but when brought to bay they will defend themselves desperately. They dart forward upon their enemy with great fury, and unless he remains cool and collected he probably will not escape.

A Man of Resources.

A young man genial of face and correct in attire arose from his seat in a well patronized cafe an evening or two ago, raised high a dollar bill and addressed those present.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I have here a dollar bill. It is a good bill, open to inspection by all. I want to raffle it off, and I will esteem it a favor if fifteen gentlemen will come in. Ten cents a chance—10 cents for a dollar bill. It's dirt cheap. Who will come in, please? I'll esteem it a favor, as I said, and there's the chance for a real bargain."

Fifteen men good naturedly chipped in 10 cents each, drew small squares of paper from a hat, and the winner pocketed the bill, with a laugh.

"Thank you, gentlemen," said the raffler, with a Chesterfieldian bow. "That dollar was of no use to me. But now that I've sold it for a dollar and a half I have my car fare home. Thank you. Good night."—New York Globe.

An Underground Canal.

Between Worsley and St. Helens, in the north of England, is the most remarkable canal in the world. It is underground, from end to end, and is sixteen miles long. In Lancashire the coal mines are very extensive, half the country being undermined, and many years ago the Duke of Bridgewater's managers thought they could save money by transporting the coal underground instead of on the surface. The canal was constructed and the mines connected and drained at the same time. Ordinary canal boats are used, but the power is furnished by men. On the roof of the tunnel arch are cross pieces, and the men do the work of propulsion by lying on their backs on the coal and pushing with their feet against the crossbars on the roof.—Argonaut.

AMONG THE THEATRES

THE ALVIN—PITTSBURG.

"The Whirl of Society," the big New York Winter Garden attraction, which will be seen at the Alvin Theatre, Pittsburg, on November 11, is one of the most elaborate entertainments ever seen in the city. It is offered by a company of 100 people, among whom are some of the best known entertainers on the stage. In addition to the two acts of the piece, "A Night with the Piorrots," a fantastic interlude, is offered between the two acts, which makes the entertainment practically continuous.

There is a plot in the main part of the offering but it is not one that will cause any deep study on the part of the public. Mrs. L. Hemingway Deane, played by Ada Lewis, is an aspiring parvenu. She gives many functions to which many are invited and she attempts to win her way by inviting members of the British nobility to her soirees. There is a negro butler in the Deane household, who is impersonated by Al Jolson. Mrs. Deane introduces numerous notable figures in an entertainment and presents Maurice, the famed cabaret dancer and his partner, Florence Walton, who performs for the guests; the Courney Sisters sing and dance, and there are many other unusual features. The runway leading from the rear of the house to the stage forms a pathway over which the figurantes march in gay array and give the audience an intimate view of the entertainers.

Al Jolson heads the cast, and some of the other prominent players are Ada Lewis, Lawrence D'Orsay and Clarence Harvey.

THE GRAND—PITTSBURG.

The fourth week of the brilliant winter season of international vaudeville in the Grand begins next Monday afternoon, November 11, with a program of all-nation acts, representing the utmost variety and expressing vaudeville's most intrinsic artistic trend. It is of special interest to Pittsburgers that Mike Donlin, the the gingery, hard-hitting and popular out-fielder of the Pirates, is to make his local debut in company with Tom Lewis, an unctous musical comedy comedian, lately of "The Yankee Prince" Company. They are to play a little skit of the national game in which Mr. Donlin is billed as the "Ball Player" and Mr. Lewis as the "Unknown." In the little skit with Mr. Lewis he is playing what is echinally known on the stage as a straight part, while the humor largely falls to the Falstaffian comedian. Robbie Gordone, an Italian girl sculptor and art model, will appear in a superb and sumptuous production in which she poses in replica of famous classic statutes. Miss Gordone is a beautiful girl, young, lithe of figure and molded on the lines of a Greek goddess. With wonderfully effective stage lightings, settings and draperies, she poses fourteen diametrically different subjects in the space of nine minutes, making her changes with remarkable celecity.

A pair of dusky grand opera singers are Downs and Gomez, baritone and soprano, whose remarkable voices are eveywhere the subject of unstinted praise. The gentility of juggling will be expressed by the Havelocks, late of the Agoust Family who will entertain with a merry silent skit called "Fun at a Five O'Clock Tea." Billy M. Wells will create laghter with his Yiddish monologue on current topics. M. Wells is a droll comedian who makes the East Side type a reality. From the Alhambra, London come Mosher, Hays and Mosher with a cycling comedy and supplementing these gifted players, are various others of undoubted talent. Motion pictures will round out a truly extraordinary bill.

THE COYLE—CHARLEROI

Beginning with the "Life of Scout Younger," in three reels, the repertoire at the Coyle Theatre this week afforded a fine array of features in photoplays. "Scout Younger," who is a brother of the notorious outlaw, Cole Younger, the pal of Jesse James, and who served 30 years in the penitentiary for the murder of the cashier in the celebrated Northfield, Minn., bank robbery shows in motion pictures some of the episodes of his thrilling career. An outlaw himself he paid the penalty behind the bars, but reformed and passed the remainder of his life in the wild west frontier and in the show business. "Star Eyes' Strategy" was a thrilling episode of love among the Indians, [illegible] furnishing all the features of the rival houses in Shakespeare's great tragedy, "Romeo and Juliet." An Eclaire film in two reels, "Caprices of Fortune," in which love and adventure are thrillingly intermingled, was a most charming feature. "The Hoodoo Letter" was another Eclaire film with a humorous interpretation, where an absent minded health officer writes a letter for a beggar giving him a permit to the pest house as a small-pox patient instead of a hard luck note. The bill for the week closes Saturday with "Early Days in the West," a two reel film of love and adventure.

THE PALACE—CHARLEROI.

With the big four-reel feature "Madeline," a graphic French story of love and intrigue in which the stirring scenes of the siege of Paris during the Franco-Prussian war form a background for the plot, the Palace Theatre had a most excellent repertoire. It was a great drawing card. Another film of unusual power and dramatic action was "The Painted Lady," a story of an elder sister who surprises a younger sister painting and powdering her face. Reproved the younger girl retorts that one has to paint if she gets any attention. The elder sister abstains from the practice, but receives no attention from the young men. A stranger appears and pays attention to the elder sister only to gain her affections in order to rob her father. The girl surprises her lover in the act, but the shock is so great that she goes insane, and just before she dies paints and powders her face in order to attract her absent lover whom she believed will return. "Little Raven's Sweetheart." was another pretty picture of a childish love between an Indian boy at a frontier fort and the little daughter of an officer of the garrison. The girl is captured by the Indians of the lad's family who rescues her under exciting conditions. The Pathe Weekly Bulletin showed some gasoline explosions in a fire on a steamship at Bayonne which were most startling.

THE STAR—CHARLEROI.

With no distinguishing feature during the week, but a succession of strong individual films, the Star Theatre this week had a remarkably good bill. "Bad Pete's Gratitude," "Love of the Flag," "Their Hero Son," were photoplays which, as their names suggest, were strong in human interest and gripping sensations. "On the Firing Line," was a Bison film which showed a civil war episode, where a small girl, in the role of an eavesdropper learned some valuable information from some officers who used the manor as headquarters, and in the night time the girl secures the papers from a sleeping officer and gives them to a Confederate soldier who takes the information to headquarters. It was just in time to prevent the capture of a wagon train and an ambush and spirited cavalry fight follows. Among others of equal merit were "The Fugitive," "The Butterfly," "And the Greatest of These is Charity." Gaumont's Weekly, gave an animated view of world-wide events, and the bill closes with some excellent photoplays for Saturday, among which are "Letters of Lifetime," and "His Better Self."

Granted Insurance After Consumption

There are so many cases of Consumption reported where they details show the disease started with a cold or a cough, that it is really surprising that people are not more anxious to immediately stop these apparently minor troubles. Our advice is "stop the cough or cold, if possible, without delay." Otherwise more serious troubles are likely to follow. If the medicines you are now taking do not bring relief, try Eckman's Alterative, as this man did:—

237 Dean St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Gentlemen: I am giving you below a brief history of my case, which I trust you will use for the benefit of those suffering from any similar troubles.

"About a year and a half ago I noticed that my health was rapidly failing, until at the end of six months my weight had fallen to 129 pounds. I was troubled with night sweats, a severe cough and was very weak, having in fact absolutely no ambition whatever. About this time I consulted a physician, who told me my lungs were affected. Not satisfied I went to another doctor, who after examining me said that I was in the first stages of consumption. At this point, I started to take Eckman's Alterative. The night sweats stopped almost immediately, my cough became looser and gradually disappeared. My weight is now 142 pounds and my physician has pronounced me perfectly sound—which, together with the fact that I have been accepted by two different insurance companies for insurance, makes me sure of my entire recovery by Eckman's Alterative. I should be very glad to communicate with any one who would be interested in my case.

(Sworn Affidavit) W. E. GEE.

Eckman's Alterative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for more evidence. For sale by all leading druggists

OUTWITTED A LION.

Clever Tactics of a Plucky and Ingenious African.

The little bushman of South Africa is not only small in size, but feeble in mind. Yet there is on record an encounter between a bushman and a lion which shows the man as cool in danger and fertile in resource.

This bushman, while a long way from his home, was met by a lion. The animal, assured that he had his victim completely in his power, began to sport and dally with him with a feline jocosity which the poor little bushman failed to appreciate. The lion would appear at a point in the road and leap back again into the jungle, to reappear a little farther on.

The bushman, however, did not lose his presence of mind and presently hit upon a device whereby he might outwit his foe. This plan was suggested by the lion's own conduct.

Aware that the beast was ahead of him, the bushman dodged to the right, and, feeling pretty sure of the lion's whereabouts, resorted to the course of quietly watching his movements.

When the lion discovered that the man had suddenly disappeared from the path he was a good deal perplexed. He roared with mortification. Then he espied the bushman peeping at him over the grass.

The bushman at once changed his position in the path, following with his eye the shifting black man. In another moment the little man rustled the reeds, vanished and showed himself at another point.

The great brute was first confused and then alarmed. It evidently began to dawn upon him that he had mistaken the point of attack and that he was the hunted party.

The bushman, who clearly recognized the situation, did not pause to permit the lion to recover his startled wits. He began to steal gradually toward the foe, who now, in a complete state of doubt and fear, turned tail and decamped, leaving the plucky and ingenious little bushman master of the situation.—Harper's.

QUEENSBORO BRIDGE.

The Greatest Structure of Its Kind in the World.

Measured by the combined length and capacity of its five main spans, the Queensboro bridge, across the East river from Fifty-ninth street, New York, to Ravenswood, Queens, is the greatest bridge in the world. Including approaches its total length is 8,600 feet, width 86 feet and greatest height over 300 feet above the water. It crosses from shore to shore, 135 feet above the river, with three enormous spans of 1,182 feet, 630 feet and 984 feet, the middle one reaching across the full width of Blackwell's island. Besides these there are two more great "anchor" spans, one at each end, wholly over dry land, with a length of 8,724 feet for the five, which together contain over 105,000,000 pounds of steel. No other spans in this country, except suspension bridges, approach the longest of these, and the only trussed span in the world which exceeds it is the Forth bridge, which, although 1,710 feet long, has a capacity for only two railroad tracks, less than one-third of this. There are two decks, the lower carrying a wide driveway and four electric car tracks and the upper one two sidewalks and two elevated railroad tracks and having in all an estimated capacity of 200,000,000 car passengers and millions of vehicles and pedestrians annually. It cost over $20,000,000.—Exchange.

PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH.

Descendants of the Germans Who Came to This Country in 1682.

To most Americans the word "Dutch" means German. The Dutch are Hollanders from the Netherlands. New York was first settled by the Dutch from Holland.

The first Germans came to this country in 1682 and settled at Germantown. It is estimated that the Germans and their descendants in Pennsylvania numbered 100,000 at the time of our revolution. The descendants of these are called the Pennsylvania Germans or Dutch. The word Dutch is a corruption of Deutsch, meaning German.

The early Germans were followers of Menno Simons, known as Mennonites. They were persecuted in their own country on account of their religious belief and when Penn offered religious liberty it was gladly accepted by them. The persecuted Germans came largely from the Rhenish palatinate, Wurtemberg, from the lower Rhine, Alsace, Saxony and Switzerland.

The southeastern counties of Pennsylvania, such as Lancaster, York, Berks and Lebanon, were chosen for settlement. These settlers spoke a variety of dialects, and, owing to segregation in religious communities, they clung to their mother tongue. English words have since crept in and as a result we have the somewhat picturesque [illegible] sylvania Dutch." Their religious belief and their common interest have preserved this class with singular purity.—Philadelphia Ledger.

TAKING A CAMERA ABROAD.

A Source of Pleasure That May Win Fine and Imprisonment.

If the American tourist carries his camera to Europe with him he must be careful to avoid photographing persons, private property and particularly government buildings, forts, docks and ships without permission. Many tourists have got themselves into much trouble in this way, especially in Russia, where the restrictions are unusually rigid, and in Germany also.

A few years ago Germany passed a special bill through the reichstag dealing with this matter and imposing heavy penalties upon those who infringe the regulations. Damages to the amount of $1,500, with a fine of $250 or two months' imprisonment, will be the fate of any one who snapshots a private person, a work of art or the interior of a private building and circulates or publishes the picture without permission.

Persons in the public eye, such as members of the royal family, statesmen, actors and well known divines are excepted, says a writer in Country Life in America. So, too, are public buildings and works of art in public galleries.

In Italy the camera of the tourist is made a means of providing revenue for that somewhat impoverished country. If you carry your camera when on a visit to Pompeii or others of the recently excavated ruins you may take as many photographs as you please, but you are forced to pay a small fee for each plate exposed.

G. A. Sala and His Epitaph.

Among some autograph letters and historical documents sold recently were a series of eight letters by George Augustus Sala addressed to W. P. Frith, including an amusing forecast of his own epitaph:

When I die it may be written on my tomb,
He wrote the worst burlesque ever acted:
He abused the constituted authorities
and
with malice prepense
maligned
The Royal Academy of Arts.
He did the things he ought not to have done and never did
Those he should have done
He was stout in person and bloated in countenance, and
He never came to dinner when he was asked.
But when he "dropped in" unasked was no doubt better company than many invited guests are.

Passport to the North Pole.

A passport to the north pole was issued some years ago by the governor of the province of Tobolsk, which stretches along the Russian shores of the Arctic ocean. The official was approached by two men who had been engaged to proceed to the north with an English expedition then fitting out. Their petition was for a passport to the pole itself, but the governor pointed out that the pole was as likely to be in their home province as in any other, that it was extremely unlikely they would reach it and that if they did there were no police there to examine their credentials. At last, however, to satisfy them he ordered the issue of a document allowing them to pass without let or hindrance to the north pole.

Dickens' Den.

Dickens' care for his material surroundings did not end with his bedroom. His favorite writing place at Gadshill was a Swiss chalet in the shrubbery, and thus he fitted up in a most ingenious fashion. "I have put mirrors in the chalet where I write," he says in one of his letters, "and they reflect and refract in all kinds of ways the leaves that are quivering at the windows and the great fields of waving corn and the sail dotted river. My room is up among the branches of the trees, and the birds and the butterflies fly in and out, and the green branches shoot in at the open windows, and the lights and the shadows of the clouds come and go with the rest of the company. The scent of the flowers and indeed of everything that is growing for miles and miles is most delicious."—London Chronicle.

"FAGGED-OUT" WOMEN

Will Find a Helpful Suggestion in This Letter.

Overworked, run down "fagged out" women who feel as though they could hardly drag about, should profit by Miss Richter's experience. She says: "Last winter I was completely down and felt fagged out all the time was nervous and had indigestion.

"One of my friends advised me to take Vinol and it has done me great good. The tired worn-out feeling is all gone and I am strong, vigorous and well. The stomach trouble soon disappeared and now I eat heartily and have perfect digestion. I wish every tired, weak, nervous woman could have Vinol, for I never spent any money in my life that did me so much good as that I spent for Vinol." Marie Richter, Detroit, Mich.

Thousands of women and men who were formerly weak and sickly owe their present rugged health to the wonderful strength-creating effects of Vinol. We guarantee Vinol to build does up and make you strong. If it does not we give back your money. Piper Brothers, Druggist.

Willing to Trade.

Uncle Mose was a chicken thief, who usually managed to keep within the petty larceny limit. One time he miscalculated, however, and was sent to trial on a charge of grand larceny.

"Have you a lawyer, Mose?" asked the court.

"No, sah."

"Well, to be perfectly fair I'll appoint a couple. Mr. Jones and Mr. Brown will act as counsel."

"What's dat?"

"Act as your lawyers. Consult with them and prepare to tell me whether you are guilty or not guilty."

"Yes, sah."

Mose talked to his attorneys for a few moments in husky whispers. The judge caught only the several times repeated word alibi. Then Mose arose, scratched his head and addressed the court.

"Jedge, yoh honah," he said, "cou'se I's only an ign'ant niggah an' Ah don' want toh boshah yoh honah, but Ah would suttinly like toh trade, yoh honah, one ob dese yeah lawyahs fob a witness."—Kansas City Journal.

The Church of Gold.

There is no structure just like St. Mark's in Venice in the world. Its bulb shaped domes and minaret like belfries remind the visitor of the orient. It seems more like a Mohammedan than a Christian temple. In the facade are scores of variously colored marble columns, each one a monolite and all possessing an eventful history. Some are from Ephesus, others from Smyrna, others from Constantinople and more than one even from Jerusalem. St. Mark's is the treasure house of Venice, a place of pride as well as prayer. The work of beautifying this old church was carried on for five centuries, and each generation tried to outdo all that had preceded it. The walls and roof are so profusely covered with mosaics and precious marbles that it is easy to understand why St. [illegible] Gold."
